Overview

About This Guide

This guide provides:

- General instructions for entering a claim status inquiry.
- Payer-specific input requirements and special considerations.

The section "Payer Details" on page 7 lists each claim status transaction by payer name, including any claim or service period date restrictions, special considerations, and a hyperlink to the appropriate response guide.

For transactions other than claim status (for example, eligibility, referral inquiry, credit report, etc.), see the guides specific to those transactions.

General Information

Requests

Determine the Transaction Type

If all members of a plan have a unique member ID, regardless of their relationship to other family members covered under the same plan, you will have only one option as the claim status transaction type: Claim Status. If plan dependents have the same member ID as the plan subscriber, select Subscriber Claim Status if the claim is for the plan subscriber or Dependent Claim Status if the claim is for a plan dependent.

Determine the Search Types

Most claim status transactions provide only one search option, which typically consists of:

- ID and name of the information requester.
- ID and name of the service provider.
- Patient name, date of birth, and sometimes gender.
- For most dependent searches, the subscriber name is also required.

Additional claim data, such as the claim period begin and end dates or claim control number, is usually necessary to locate the correct claim.

Occasionally, the payer may allow more than one search option, for example:

- Provider and patient data plus the claim control number.
- Provider and patient data plus the total charge, period begin, and period end date.

Or:

- Medical Claims.
- Pharmacy Claims.

You must make sure that at least one search type is complete by verifying that there is data in every input field underscored by one single color (for example, all fields underscored by a black bar). If you want the Emdeon software to automatically initiate another search if the first search does not find the patient's record, make sure that you enter enough data to perform more than one search type (for example, there is data in input fields underscored by both black and red bars).

The query may also contain optional input fields (for example, middle initial, gender, or group number). In certain cases, these optional input fields may help the payer find the patient's record.

Be sure to read the help lines for each optional input field. This information will assist you in constructing your query.

If you enter data for more than one search type:

If you enter data for more than one search type, you enable Emdeon's SmartSearch™ feature. This feature causes the software to resend the query, using each different search type, until the patient's record is found. This process is referred to as a search cascade.

The SmartSearch cascade process works like this:

1. When the query is processed, the software sends the combination of data that is most likely to locate the patient's record.
2. If the database responds that the patient's record was not found, the software sends the combination of data which is the next most likely to locate the record.

3. If again the patient's record is not found, the process repeats until one of the following occurs:
 - The record is found.
 - All search types from the query have been sent.
 - Certain types of errors occur.
 - You cancel processing.

Enter the Search Data

Data Input Area

Requester ID	Requester Last	Requester First	Requester Middle	Svc Prov ID
6088999	Jones	Robert		5447729

The data input area contains the information Emdeon will use to query the payer's database. You can manually enter or change information, if necessary.

Color Bars

The color bars beneath input fields identify the input data required to complete each search type. All input fields with the same color bar compose a search type. For example, to complete entries for a search using provider and patient data plus the claim control number, you would need to make an entry in each input field that has a black color bar.

Note the following:

- The position of the color bar beneath an input field indicates the sequence in which the search will be conducted in the event of a SmartSearch cascade. The left-most position indicates that the input field is used in the highest priority search type. The next position from the left is for the second priority search type, and so on.
- The colors themselves also indicate the priority of the search type, in this sequence:
 - Black
 - Red
 - Yellow
 - Light green
 - Blue
 - White

Optional input fields do not have a color bar. The Account # and Amount input fields are always optional input fields that are not sent to the payer in the request. These input fields may be used for your internal use only. The account number is the number you have assigned to the account. The amount is the dollar amount applicable to the query.

Text Color in Input Fields

The initial entry you make in an input field in a new query will be blue text if it is valid or red text if it is invalid (for example, letters in a numeric field or an entry that is the wrong length).

Black text indicates that you changed the original entry, but that the change is valid.

Help Line

For information about an input field in which the cursor is resting, consult the help line at the bottom of the screen. See the following example.

Requesting and Service Provider Identifiers

Commonly, you are required to enter two provider identifiers: one for the requesting provider and one for the service provider.

Many payers allow either a provider ID or a tax ID to be used as the provider identifier. In this case, you will see an input field for each, but you are required to enter only one of them. Rest your cursor in one of the input fields, and note the entry requirements listed on the help line at the bottom of the screen.

As a provider ID, a payer may accept or require your National Provider Identifier, or they may accept your ETIN (Electronic Transmitter Identification Number) or your payer-assigned ID.

In order for you to use the NPI, the following conditions must exist:

- The payer must be ready to accept NPI. Consult our payer lists at www.emdeon.com/PayerLists/payerlists.php for this payer's NPI-readiness status.
- The provider must have fulfilled all of the payer's NPI registration requirements.

You can set up a default provider ID number or a drop-down list of frequently used provider IDs. For more information, see your product's user guide.

Claim Level versus Service Level Inquiries

Claim level inquiries allow you to inquire about the status of an entire claim.

Service level inquiries, when supported by the payer, allow you to inquire about the status of a specific line item in the claim (for example, a charge for a specific service or procedure performed). Payers who support service level inquiries generally allow you to inquire at the claim level as well, simply by not entering line level information.

Common Claim Level Input Fields

The majority of claim status transactions allow you to request the status of claims at the claim level, versus specific line items within the claim.

Common claim level input fields include:

- Claim control number: the control number the payer has assigned to the claim. It is recommended that you provide this information whenever possible because it is the most specific identifier of the claim.
- Total charge: the total dollar amount of the claim; recommended.
- Patient account number: your internal tracking number for the claim.
- Bill type: the institutional bill type submitted on the original claim. For institutional claims only.
- Medical record number: the medical record number submitted on the original claim; recommended.
- Claim period begin and end dates: the begin and end dates of service on the claim. Usually required for claim level inquiries. If the claim is for a single date, enter the same date as the begin and end date.
- Group number: can be a system location identifier or the plan group number. See the help line.
- Pharmacy prescription number: can be used for pharmacy claim status inquiries.

Common Service Level Input Fields

Common service level input fields include:

- Procedure code and modifiers.
- Line item charge amount.
- NUBC revenue code. For institutional claims only.
- Quantity or number of service units.
- Line item control number: control number assigned by the payer to the line item.
- Service line date or date range: typically the claim period dates are not required if the service line dates are provided.

Date Entries

Claim period and service line dates can be entered either in six-digit (mmddyy) or eight-digit (mmdccyy) format.

If you enter a two-digit year, the software will convert the century, as follows, when you move off the date of service field:

- If the figure you enter is equal to or less than 20, the century converts to a date in the 2000s. For example, if you enter 03, the software converts the century to 2003.
- If the figure you enter is greater than 20, the century converts to a date in the 1900s. For example, if you enter 50, the software converts the century to 1950.

You must enter all eight digits for a date of birth.

Dates of Service Restrictions

The date of inquiry appears in the claim period date or service line date input fields by default. To accept the date of inquiry, press the Tab key to go to the next input field.

However, if you want to enter other dates, be aware that your payer may or may not have restrictions on the claim period or service line dates. To determine your payer's date restrictions, see "Payer Details" on page 7.

Dollar Amounts

An input field for a dollar amount places a static decimal point two decimal places to the left of the right-most two digits. Therefore, you must enter a cent value even for whole dollar amounts.

Bill Type

Some transactions may have an input field for the bill type. The bill type indicator may be found on UB92 record 40-4, paper form locator 4, or 837 claim in composite element CLM05.

Add New Button

In some cases, a query will allow you to enter several occurrences of an input field or group of input fields (such as procedure codes and modifiers), but only one instance of the input field is initially displayed. The presence of an Add New button beside the input field indicates that the additional input fields are hidden.

You can display additional occurrences of the field by clicking the Add New button.

Special Considerations

The payer may have guidelines for the information that you enter. For example, the claim control number may be an optional input field, but the payer may recommend that you enter the claim control number to narrow your search. To determine if there are any special considerations for the transaction, see "Payer Details" on page 7.

Responses

There are three types of claim status responses available through your product:

- A response using version 4 of Emdeon's standard response format.
- A response using version 5 of Emdeon's standard response format.
- A response that uses a non-standard format.

For information on the response used for each payer, see "Payer Details" on page 7. Here, the Response Guide column provides a hyperlink to the appropriate response guide.

The response guides are also available on your installation CD or on the Emdeon resource library at www.emdeon.com/resourcelibrary/#84; click User Manuals.
